The View From The Back Pew

By Chris "Coach" Akers

Saturdays 4-8PM

I recently celebrated another birthday. Someone asked me if it was a "milestone" birthday. Shoot, after a certain age, they are all milestones! Now I am not "old" in the eyes of society I guess. But let's just say I don't celebrate turning another year older each year quite like I did when I was younger.

I have discovered that as you age, your perspective on a lot of things changes. For lack of a better explanation, old age can best be summed up as still having something on the ball but just being too tired to bounce it!

I've heard all my life the phrase "you are old enough to know better." Truth be told, I am guilty of uttering those same words to the "youngins" I encounter. But sometimes, increased age doesn't equal increased intelligence. Lord knows I am guilty of that, like I am sure we all are.

But you know what the "smart" thing to do is? Accepting Jesus Christ as your Lord and Savior. He doesn't care about a few wrinkles or gray hairs. His love for you is unwavering, regardless if you're 1 year old or 101. What an awesome God He is!

So, if you haven't made that decision to trust in Him, I beg you to do so. He will change your life forever. After all, don't you know better?
